The Lithuanian partner coordinator (Dalia) gave information about their organization. The coordinator from Lithuania, Dalia, agreed to send the description for the project webpage. The Czech partner (Eva) presented some basic information and photos of Prague, nature in the city, protected areas, problems of pollution and waste, methods and examples of environmental education.

After coffee break, the current activities which each organization is carrying out within the FROG project were presented to all participants.

In all presentations it was clearly stated that the FROG project is completely comprised into the educational process in all partner institutions. The dissemination of the FROG project is so far led through the partners' websites, posters in schools and being a part of educational activities. There are not only activities related to the topic of environment carried out but also they studied the culture of partner countries. They had interests about typical Christmas cakes of some partner country and they even cooked them.

Outdoor ecological activities were also presented. Some groups visited collecting yards where waste is collected to follow the recycling process. A video of car recycling plant was shown and details of materials and structures which is possible to recycle were given.

Many groups showed photos of trips to nature on foot and bicycle or skiing. Some of them took part in planting new trees.

For sustainable food it is important to choose local farmers products. In small cities and villages people have their own garden and animals and they produce some food for their own consumption and for farmers markets.

The felting workshop was led by CZ partner /Eva/. The group was split into 2 parts because of the big number of participants. Wool was used as a natural material for many different uses. Some examples of wool products were shown. The topic of the workshop was to recycle used woolen material into new products -woolen flower, brooches... It was also possible to use new felt. Students preferred to work with new material because it was more attractive. They made brooches, small bags, textile pictures.

During the two coffee breaks some partners shared with the participants typical sweets or cheese from their countries.

The partners from Netherlands (Cristina, Rui) led the next activity with music and dance. Students learned to listen to music and move according to it, they took part in making music with very simple tools, they danced. This activity - that can be used both as an ice breaker and as a training method - was accepted with great pleasure.
